

Klamath River Steelhead

- ◆ Come and experience one of the best steelhead fly fishing trips we have to offer. The mouth of the Klamath River.
- ◆ Join us as we take a scenic jet boat ride up river to our drop off points where anglers have the opportunity to wade and cast to scores of migrating steelhead.
- ◆ Only traditional fly-fishing methods is what you will find on this trip. No staring at indicators all day, walk and wade the rivers edge swinging steelhead patterns to eager feeding fish.

The Fishing

- ◆ During the last century the Klamath River gained worldwide recognition for the quality of its steelhead.
- ◆ While often anglers count the number of days needed to take a steelhead, the remarkable Klamath most often produces a number of steelhead per day. The fish are a hearty combination of resident rainbows, juvenile steelhead, adult steelhead and the famous Klamath half-pounders.
- ◆ We believe there may be no finer place to learn the craft of fly-fishing for this legendary sport fish. The numbers of fish and their aggressiveness allows for a variety of techniques including the classic Klamath Swing for adult and half-pound fall run steelhead. The Klamath offers outstanding opportunities to develop two-handed tactics as well. We use a power boat to access prime runs and take the opportunity to wade a number of exceptional glides.
- ◆ Though we target mainly steelhead, anglers have the distinct opportunity to catch migrating chinook in August and coho and half pounders in October.

Lodging & Transportation

- ◆ Rivers West Lodge is located 20 miles up stream on California's renowned Klamath River. This remote lodge sits nestled along the rivers bank and is only accessible by Jet Boat.
- ◆ As part of your fishing trip you will board a jet boat and begin your journey starting at the Klamath estuary called "Rekwoi", the Indian name for where the fresh water meets the Pacific Ocean. As your Captain turns the boat upriver and powers up the twin jets, sit back, relax and view nature in it's most primitive form as it unfolds before you.
- ◆ Our experienced captains will provide a fully narrated river trip with plenty of stops to photograph spectacular vistas and wildlife. Bears are often seen feeding along the banks of the river on berries, fish and grubs. Ospreys return in April to their nesting area of the Klamath River from as far south as Brazil.

THERE ARE THOSE OF US WHO GO TO FISH

Tim Treadway

Your host and guide. I have been in the guide industry now for 23 years. Before moving to Oregon in 1996 I spent my beginning years guiding the upper reaches of the Klamath River. Fly-Fishing is my passion and have spent countless hours studying and learning the art of this great sport. There is nothing I enjoy more than spending time on the water with our clients working on techniques to persuade the elusive steelhead to take a fly

Klamath Facts

- ◆ The Klamath River is the largest of the North Coast rivers of California stretching over 200 miles from its mouth to the Oregon border. Its mouth is located 60 miles north of Eureka and 20 miles south of Crescent City off 101. The fish of the Klamath are King and Silver salmon, Steelhead, and resident trout. The Kings start running in July with the best action near the mouth coming in August and running through September. Summer/Fall steelhead start running from the late summer through October. The winter run starts in November and goes through February.
- ◆ While the King salmon are average to large in size, the steelhead of the Klamath tend to run smaller than the other rivers(4-10lbs). The number of steelhead make up for this size difference however.
- ◆ The Klamath River is home to a number of Pacific salmon species that are important to native Tribes. Spring and fall chinook, summer and winter steelhead, coho salmon and coastal cutthroat trout use the river every day of the year while rearing or migrating to the ocean, and on spawning journeys back to their native streams.
- ◆ Much of the year both steelhead and trout make the Klamath their home. The fall has the strongest action as the steelhead move upriver to spawn. In the spring they make their way back down river to the Pacific.
- ◆ Beginning in late summer, great migrations of King Salmon (Chinook) make their way up river back to their place of origin to lay their own eggs to complete the circle of life.
