

Grand Ronde River

Trout & Steelhead

The Grand Ronde River, in the extreme Northeast corner of Oregon, affords a rare opportunity to fly fish a nearly pristine river corridor. The sections we float are road-less, and are accessed on multi-day camping trips. The river canyon encompasses a variety of terrain types, from forested peaks to semi-arid lands as it nears the Snake River. It's an astonishingly beautiful part of the world.

From mid-September to November, summer steelhead is the name of the game. The Grand Ronde is recognized as one of the best rivers in North America to take steelhead on a surface fly. The run of fish ranges from "A" run fish in the 4-6 lb class, to "B" run fish in the 7-14 lb class.

Experiencing Northeast Oregon in the fall is a treat; crisp mornings give way to sunny, warm days, with the fresh scent of autumn in the air and abundant wildlife.

2006 SEASON RATES

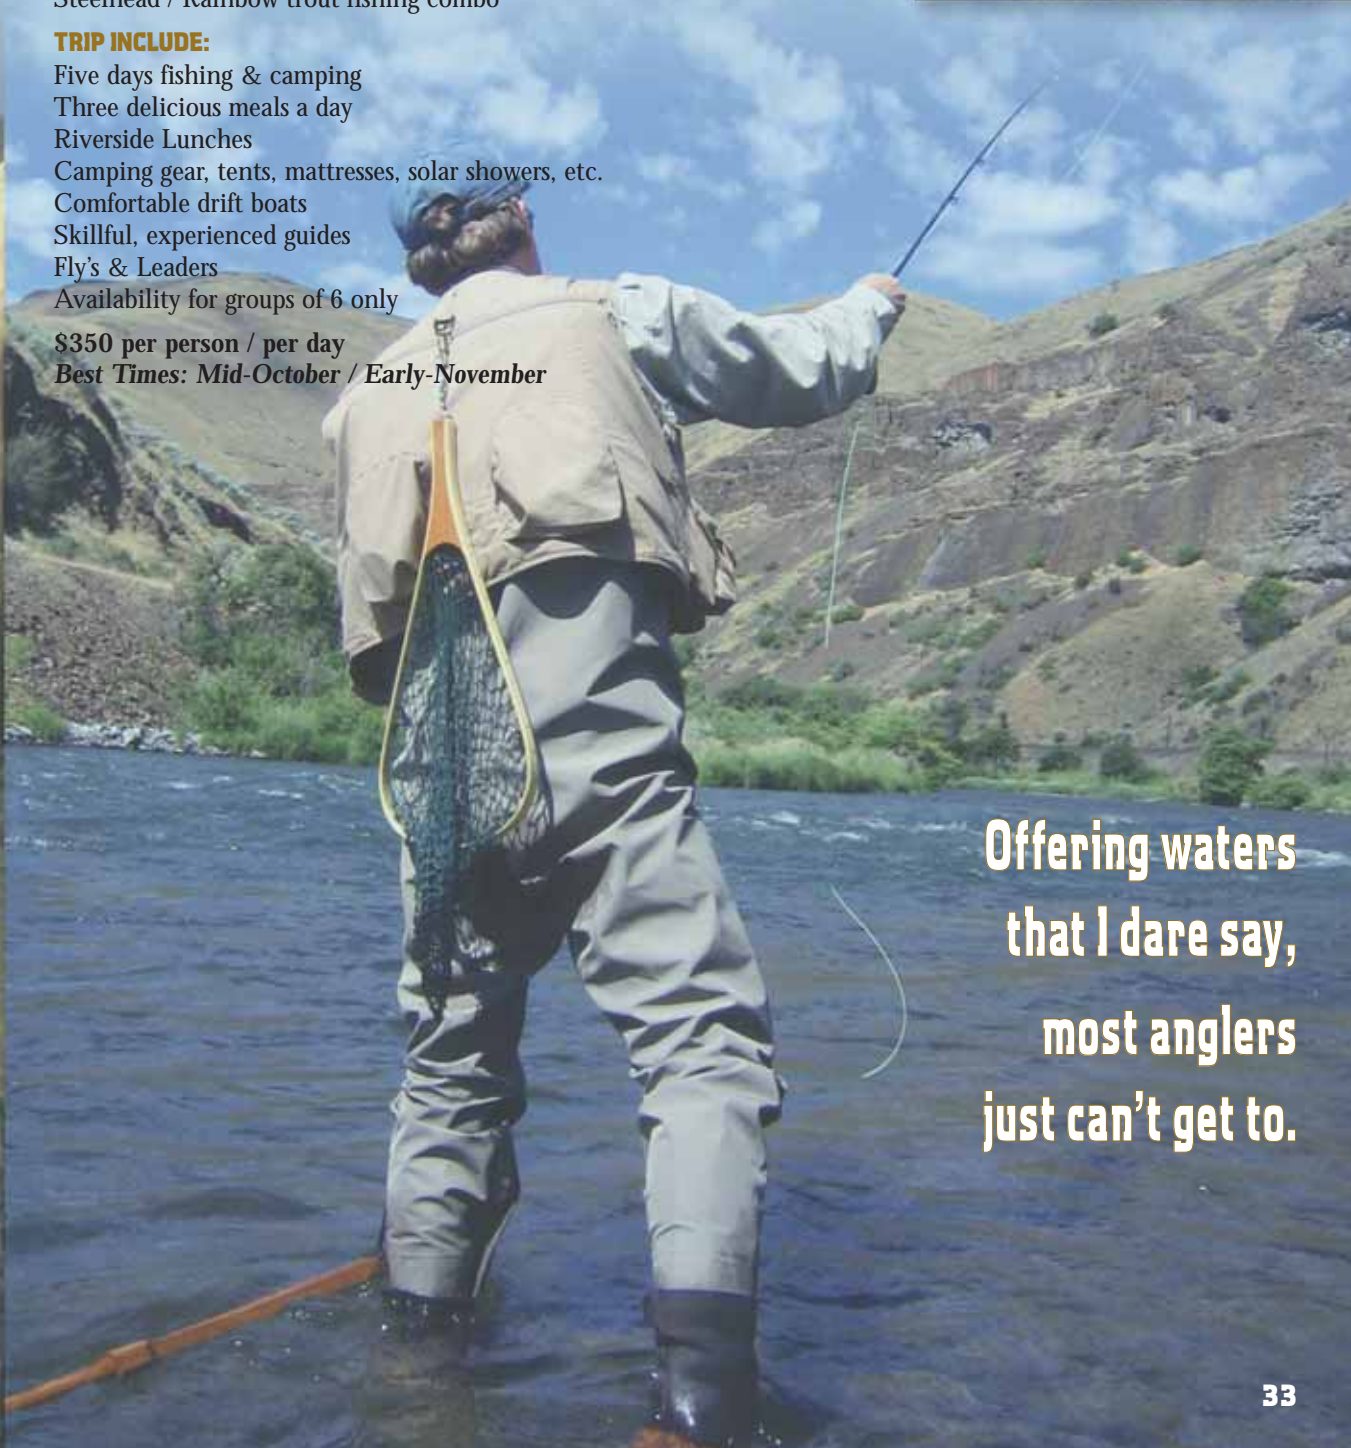

Steelhead / Rainbow trout fishing combo

TRIP INCLUDE:

- Five days fishing & camping
- Three delicious meals a day
- Riverside Lunches
- Camping gear, tents, mattresses, solar showers, etc.
- Comfortable drift boats
- Skillful, experienced guides
- Fly's & Leaders
- Availability for groups of 6 only

$350 per person / per day

Best Times: Mid-October / Early-November

Offering waters
that I dare say,
most anglers
just can't get to.